Community Corrections Division:

The Community Corrections Division (formerly known as probation and parole) supervises approximately 27,000 offenders in communities and work release facilities across Washington State. The Division's 1,430 employees promote reintegration and public safety by:

- * Providing guidance, support and program opportunities for all offenders returning to the community.
- * Holding offenders accountable to their imposed conditions, as they resume life within the community.
- * Collaborating and supporting community resources and parties with a vested interest in successful offender transition into the community.

For additional information about the Department of Corrections, please visit www.doc.wa.gov.

Duties

Community Corrections Officers supervise offenders who have either been confined in a county jail or prison (for felony convictions of more than a year), or were sentenced to direct supervision in the community. Most offenders have conditions of supervision. These conditions are guided by public-safety considerations and engage each offender in programs to reduce the likelihood to re-offend. Offenders report to Community Corrections Officers and, depending upon the offender's history or crime, may be required to participate in substance abuse treatment programs, offender change programs, counseling, family reunification programs, and other services proven to reduce the likelihood to re-offend.

Work assignments include:\

- * Participate in the formation and maintenance of successful relationships and involvement with community members and resources to enhance services to offenders. Work with community and corrections partners to facilitate offender programs and the successful re-entry of an offender into society.
- * Facilitate offender change groups.
- * Counsel offenders and/or refer them to counseling or other resource/treatment programs
- * Conduct field visits (offender homes and worksites) under possibly adverse or hazardous conditions.
- * Make appropriate decisions regarding loss of liberty, sanctions, treatment, and education referrals.
- * Present documentation, oral testimony, and sanction recommendations for court/hearings.
- * Identify, collect, document, and maintain evidence and information from outside sources.
